Baxter Hankin, Syracuse University 2020 Architecture Graduate

Several animated "walk-throughs" will move viewers through what might be possible — in a Syracuse district that still currently straddles an artificial highway dividing line between Downtown and The Near East, generally north of East Genesee Street and south of Erie Boulevard East.

Hankin's project idealizes a picturesque walkable urbanism, while calling for responsible and beneficial incremental redevelopment, in order to meet the expected demand from highway removal, and from the general trends of urbanization. This is intended to get people thinking about an area that has been nearly forgotten. More details, and many links to samples from this study, are posted on the Facebook Group Greater Westcott Nation: <https://fb.me/e/1T8r72EYG>

7:25 TNT City-wide Update
